

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

It's hard to believe that the ownership of Sinclair has no more regard for a free democracy than they've shown by this act. Is responsibility a word unknown to the new US media?